The Augusta Constitutionalist says Sherman has not for a moment hesitated as to the point to be attacked or the read to it, saying that the enemy broke camp at Soperville early on the morning of the Bri, inst., abandoning the shortest route to Augusta, moving by a new route in the direction of Savannah.

The Constitutionalist lays out the following campaign for Sherman, as being the most natural one; With his forage and provision trains full, he will pass his entire army to Millen, then throwing his cavalry in the rear, he will put his wagon trains between the two wings of his army, and move in a compact column steadily but cautiously on the city of Savannah.

Richmond papers of the 7th say: "Sherman's campaign is drawing to a ciose: He is approaching the coast by way of Darien and Savannah, but we have a formidable force between those points, which he will have to encounter before reaching either point. We think Sherman is done with strategy and will now attempt to break through our forces and thus attempt to reach the sac coast. Things will culminate this week. the correction of any inequalities or defects now existing:

There are several recommendations of a minor character, but the foregoing are sumicent to warrant the remark that those who complain that Mr. Fessenden recommends nothing have not fortified their judgments by reading his report. In those five propositions which the Secretary urges upon the attention of Congress, he has our most cordia confurence. We have raid things, advocated the policy of restricting the existing paper of rulation of the country to fix present bout do, even at the cost of great tribuiation for, the time being; and it is with much pleasure that we notice the statement in the refor the time being; and it is with much plea-sure that we notice the statement in the re-port that only a trilling addition has been made to this circulation during the past six months—the ninety millions of compound in-terest notes having been issued to replace an equal amount of five per cent coupon notes taken upand destroyed. The only contin-gency, Mr. Fessenden assures us, under which he shall feel justified in issuing any more notes, will be the actual impossibility of obtaining means for carrying on the war in any other way. He relies on the patriot-iem of the people to furnish the money to carry out the views so distinctly pronounced in the election. Upon this point he says: "To no individual would my considerable add tofore, is $2,645,320,082.08.

The report as a whole is an able, lucid, and most candid document, which cannot fail to strengthen the public credit. Congress cannot do better than to carry the suggestions of the Sefretary into effect. The people are ready to meet the financial question, as well as the military question, and vell as the military question, involved in the suppression of the rebellion. They only require that the means employed shall be used intelligently and economically. So long as they are satisfied in this regard they will furnish the money as freely as they furnish the men, and they will furnish all that may be needed of both.

The "Southern Aimanae" for the year 1985, published at Lynchburg, Va., gives a statement of the killed, wounded and prisoners in the great battles of the war, for 1861-2-3-4. stated fully fifty per cent, while the Federal losses are overstated at least fifty per cent. Take the whole war together, and the excess of loss has been on the side of the rebels. We hold the day 25,000 more of their prisoners than they do of ours, which fart effectually disposes of the claim of the Southern Almanae that they have taken the most. The rebel loss of prisoners during 1854 is set down as only 7,500. Why, Sherman took as many as 10,000 and Grant at least 18,000. The rebels have lost considerably more prisoners this year than the Federal loss by battle safe sickness has not exceeded one-half that stated in the above table. But it serves a purpose to stuff the Southern people with this sort of deception.

ment, our neverteeness they are foot some positions in the pits, with an evident willingness, if not eagerness, and so con ident were officers and men that we should hold our line, that nothing was taken by them except their arms and accountements. The regiment were working on the breastworks when they were ordered to the pits, where they stood in silence sometime previous to our taking part. Some were watching the advancing foe and the dimly descried contest in the distance, some intently engaged in thinking over the probabilities of the impending battle, while not a few were sliently but fervently offering up a prayer to heaven.

On rushed the maddened foe. When they came in range the cry went up, "Open on them, boy; give it to them." And the boys did open on them, and, when ones commenced, the firing did not cease for ten long hours.

But the enemy were too nowerful and any useful to lawyers, merchants, and business men generally. The Clreuit Clerks ("ho are also ex-officio Recordors) are elected for four, and the Sheriffs for two years. The list is copied from that in possession of Hon. O. M. Hatch, Secretary of State:

Counties. Circuit Clerks. Shqriffs. Adama... S S Rooks, p. Adama... S R menced, the aring did not cease for ten long hours.

But the enemy were too powerful and nu-merous, and, forcing the line as our left, opened a cross-fire, which event, together with our skirmlabers rushing over our works, caused our regiment to fail tack to the sec-ond line of works. But our line was soon after retaken, principally by our boys, and held till after dark, when the rebels, after re-rected assaults and Grow their conheld till after dark, when the rebels, after re-peated assaults, and from their position on the left, compelled us to leave it.

The officers showed themselves to be as fearless as the men were brave, and both of our field officers were wounded while heroic-ally facing the tremendous fire of the enemy and directing with coolness the fire of the men. Thus, in the very first part of our en-ergetic resistance, fell our noble and brave Lieut, Col. Stockton and Maj. James. But we can hope for their speedy recovery and re-turn. Lieut. Col. Stockton and Maj. James. But we can hope for their speedy recovery and return. The command of the regiment then devolved upon the galiant Capt. Jas. A. Sexton, whose exertions upon various parts of the field will not be forgotten.

The coolness and self possession of the officers was truly encouraging to the men, and the determination of both was very effective in making such a successful resistance in the face of so many embarrassments.

Chargeupon charge was unde by the rebels, and repulse upon repulse followed, which brought forth yells and cheers from our lines. The proportion of our loss to that of the whole rebel loss shows plainly the part they took in the battle of Franklin.

The nature of our present report excludes The nature of our present report excludes many thrilling incidents, and also a more ex-tended description of the men, field and bat tle generally.
Since the battle we have arrived at Nash-ville, been transferred to Gen. Smith's corps, and are now defending the city againt Hood, who can be distinctly heard thundering away.

The following, after discussion, were taken up for adoption. The following, after discussion, were recommended: Red Dutch, White Dutch and White.

In selecting sites adapted to the wants of the orchardist, attention should be paid to the water of the orchardist, attention should be paid to their elevations, with their approximate surroundings; such as large and small streams of water, the protection and influence of tim. ber, and other causes more or less local. Most persons in descending to low valleys of a still pricht, excelling the small of the smal right, especially those watered by small treams, cannot have failed to observe the streams, cannot have failed to observe the great degree of cold slavays prosent in these situations; the comparative difference in temperature will be found to be greater when the atmosphere is still and 'sightly charged with moisture. Small, shallow bodies of water absorb heat rapidly during the day, consequently the valleys are warmer than the hills. They part with it with equal facility in the night, and thus their relative conditions are changed. nd thus their relative conditions are changed be warm air has risen, and the colder air the warm aights risen, and the colder air from itayrenter density, has descended and remains. The valley is not so cold in the early part, as later. Much of the heat of the air is absorbed by the water in evaporation, which is always a cooling process; and the hotter the day has been the greater will be the difference between the temperature of the nill and the valley. As for instance, in certain portions of Hindostan, when the amosphere is very dry and hot, lee, one-tourth of an inch thick is formed on water exposed at night its broad, shallow pans. This is due to the rapid evaporation which cools the water.

Countries covered with dense forests, owing to their retention of moisture, are colder in the same latitude than those less thickly in the same latitude than those less thickly wooded.
Tearly observations, made in the neighborhood of Aiton, on elevations of from 20 to 200 feet above and bordering on the Mississippl River, give a difference in temperature, on still nights, as great as twelve degrees. During the past fall, at an elevation of 250 feet, and distant 30 yards from the river, troat was barely perceptible. On descending to near the mouth of a rayine, which acts as a drain for the passage of cold aft to a considerable extent of country, ice had formed of one-third inch thickness. The apple question was then empended in order to witness some of the exercises in the Normal School.

The discussion on applies took a wide range, and the list agreed upon was made up on motion torded, without much consideration of the merits of either. The vote was influenced to a great statent by the prejudices of a sectional character, of the members. With a State which enbruogas six degrees of latitude, and much variation of soil and climate, it may be regarded as a pretty difficult task to agree upon a general list appropriate to the whole State, and the practice, fis hapetofore followed, of making sectional lists—for Northern, Central, and Southern Illinois—we within would have resulted more satisfactorily to all concerned. The list made on seemed to satisfy very lew, as a whole, and I should not work the exercises in the Market witnessing the Sectory adjunced until 6 o'clock, m.

The Incendiary Plot in New York—Hang Every Mother's Son of the incendiaries.

[Prom the Richmond Enquirer, Dec. 8]
The universal Yankoe nation is agitated. Such an excitement has not overtaken that people for many years. "A black vallee," the water unto a mad dog, throws all New York into fits. It is worth the liberty, and before long it will be worth the liberty, and before long it will be worth the inte, of a man to be owner or occupier of a black vallee, "A reward of twenty-five thousand dollars is offered by the city," and proprietors of hotels in public have unanimously whereased and resolved that many hotels were fired on the 25th and 26th instants, and that a reward of $20,000 be offered by the N. Y. H. K. S. or society for the safe keeping of New York hotels from the incendiary devilment of wieked rabeis. Admiral Faudicing has forbid any man visiting the navy yards. The very fires of hell are said to smoulder in a black valles—phe aphorus, turpentine, Greek fire, fulminate of mercary, and another combustible which some Northern rebel has invented that resembles common coal. No man is sefe with a black valles—that stock has greatly fallen, and has injured the value of black leather trunks, boots, bridle-reins, harness—all things resembling a black valles—rese—all things resembling a black valles are which some vortices recent in a sofe with a black value—that stock has greatly fallen, and has injured the value of black leather trunks, boots, bridie-reins, harness—all things resembling a black value are regarded as adoptions. This is the people that have vlatred out a conquesting, and are now frightened into duck fits by a shaving apparatus. Or course, it was a "rebel incendiary plot!" Didn't they fire on Fort Samter, where footated the "Old Fing?" A morality that ages not restrain violence to the emblem of the "best Govornment, &c.," will hardly be proof against the sin of burning hotels. Nothing can be cleaver than the proof of Mir. Davis' complicity with the burning or attempt to burn some half-dosen hotels in New Tork. We have never read anything more truly rankeedsh than this whole affair. We are very glad to see that all Southern refugees are required to register. If General Div will hamp them, he well do a service to our cause; they are a sof occurrily meats, oho, laving descriad their country, are not above burning hotels. Hang serry mather's son of them.

[From the Blehmond Whig, Dec. 2.]

We are rather sorry that the man with the black value commenced his operations in New York. We may say that we are sorry he tried his hand on New York at all—or at least under present circumstance. Had be succeeded, he would, perhaps, have effected interropolls of Yankeedom; but it is not against the commercial metropolis of Yankeedom that countern hostility is at this moment directed. If there is any place in the North that ought to be spared, that place is New York. Not that its population is ever tions of the fight than your readers can gain from the floating tumors and reports, and at the same time gladden their hearts by reciting to you the honorable achievements of the glorious 88th fillinois.

With the history of the successive evacuations of Pulaski and Columbia you are already acquainted; I will not, therefore, stop to mention these except to say that in my poor judgment the execution of these movements was most wretchody and bunglingly accomplished. Two capital errors seemed always to prevall: fatal healtancy and delay in determining upon the execution of moyements from the nature of things already imperative, and drude precipitancy in their development when the period of action could not longer be put off. By consequence of these things the whole army of Hood was close upon our heels. On the morning of the 58th ult, our division received orders to guard our corps trains to Spring Hill, and there to encamp for the night.

Our brigade held the advance, the 88th (with which, for the purposes of field operations to consolitated the 74th Blinchis conations, is consolidated the 75th Illinois) composing the rear of the column. A mile before reaching Spring Hill news came that Forrest, who had crossed Duck Elver during the night, was moving upon the town. Instanty, and not a moment too soon, we were put on the double quick. Reaching town we condises the enemy's cavalry moving across the fields from the right in most gallant and confident style. Without halling or unalinging knapascks the 88th was moved out of column by the right flank, and deployed as skirmishers in Forrest's front. We pushed buck the enemy steadily and surely, driving him a rulle, when we formed our skirmish and the style without halling on a series of desperate charges infront of the 3nd and 3rd brigades, which suffered some temporary disaster. Night closed in soon afterwards, and the fighting ceased. Meanwhile the trains were all getting in, and the other divisions of our corps and the 28rd corps coming up. 89 2 o'clock a. m. of the 30th the last wagon was on the road to Franklin; byd o'clock this regiment, which was again designated for the piet of honor, was in position as skirmishers for the rear of the samy. Hou's cashiry followed in spretty closely, getting round on our fank whenever the wooded hills jutted out anti-ciently close to the road to enable them to give us a volley. We had several sharp bouts with them during the masch, but kept them at a respectful distance. At noon we reached Franklin, which Cox's division of

The staughter was perfectly horrible; the gound was estually alippery with blood and gove. The 88th Illinois captured one division and four regimental flags: the 74th Illinois captured two, making seven in all, and we took from two to three hundred prisoners.

At middight, when the troops withdrew, we were left to cover the movement of our brigade, and for an hour and a half opposed our thin skirmish line to the solid rebet columns. Some of us confess to have been a little nervous, and certainly you will admit it to have been a critical and ticklish position. But we got off safely, rejoined our brigade, and moved with it to the outer defense of Nashville.

Arrived there, Gen. Wood (who in the absence of Gen. Stanley, wounded, commands the Corps,) accompanied by Wagner and Thomas, paki the regiment a visit. Gen. Wood wongoth out Col. Smith and addressed him thus: "Colonel, I desire to repeat to you, in the presence of Gen. Stanley, wounded, command, that which Gen. Stanley said to me respecting yourself and the troops you command, that which Gen. Stanley said to me respecting yourself and the troops you command, that with the exception only of Col. Opphy, commanding your brigade, with whom you share the honor—TO TOUR SPECIAL CALLANTIONS MORE THAN TO THOSE OF ANY OTHER MAN, 15 OWNO THE REPULAN OF THE REPULAN THE REPULA EXERTIONS MORE THAN TO THOSE OF ANY OTHER MAN, 15 OWNO THE REPULAN OF THE REPULAN THE MERGLALLANTIONS, the safety of the army and the victory of the day, in his mane and in mine I thank you." Thereupon Gen. Thomas desired to see our captured fings, when, turning to Gen. Wagner, he desired him to make in official report relative to Col. Smith, and to the regiment, assuring the men that their services were most thoroughly appreciated.

Our canualities were, 2 killed, 7 wounded and 6 missing—18 in all. The '64th suffered more, and it is due to the officers and men of that regiment to say that every word of commendation houestly earned by ourselves, was earned by them also. No soldiers could be cooler,
